

Funny FOSS stories from the pages of

Simon Sharwood
APAC Editor
The Register
theregister.co.uk @ssharwood

User demanded PC be moved to move to a sunny desk – because it needed Windows

Desktop team cleans up mess created by developers, and doctors confused by disks

'I knew the company was doomed after managers brawled in a biker bar'

Plus: It's all fun and games until someone loses an eye, or freezes off their toes

Simon Charwood, 20 Sep 2021

Sysadmin tells user CSI-style password guessing never w- wait WTF?! It's 'PASSWORD1'!

Fresh cotton underpants fix series of mysterious mainframe crashes

Boss swore by 'For Dummies' book about an OS his org didn't run

Sysadmin's sole client was his wife – and she queried his bill

'The server broke and so did my back on the flight to fix it'

Developer waits two years for management to define project

PC repair chap lets tech support scammer log on to his PC. His Linux PC

Linux-loving lecturer 'lost' email, was actually confused by Outlook